Course Description

Shakespeare: Stage and Film is a 7.5-week course devoted to exploring how Shakespeare’s plays, which we will first encounter as printed texts, are transformed into stage and film productions. We will read the plays as published texts, yet also consider how theatre and film artists make thoughtful dramaturgical choices as they bring the texts to life on stage and screen. We will watch several films and staged versions in their entirety, and also look at shorter scenes. The goal is for students to analyze the choices made in staging the plays to determine the meanings made. The course is divided into Five Acts that contain readings, quizzes, viewings, discussions, and essay assignments. Please note that the Acts overlap; you will be completing one Act as you begin the next. You will also study for and take a final exam during the last week of the course.

| Act I: Introduction to Shakespeare, his theatre, and his texts | 10/16 – 10/27 |
| Act II: Reading a stage production, reading a film | 10/23 – 11/3 |
| Act III: Shakespeare’s characters | 10/30 – 11/11 |
| Act IV: Adaptations and offshoots | 11/6 – 11/17 |
| Act V: Putting it all together | 11/13 – 11/27 |
| Final Exam Week | 11/27 – 12/8 |

Course Overview

In this course, we will be looking at the differences between stage and film productions of Shakespeare. The materials that we will be viewing have been made for different purposes, and it is important to notice the differences in style and intention:

- In some cases, we will be looking at recordings of actual stage productions. Though the production quality of these recorded stagings have improved in recent years, it is important to keep in mind that watching a recording is not the same as seeing a stage production live. Directorial choices about the recording (where to focus the camera, when and where to use close ups, how to capture the audience response, etc.) alter the experience of being an audience member in the theatre.
- Film versions of Shakespeare were conceived directly for film, using all the tools of filmmaking to create a cinematic version of Shakespeare’s play. These films tend to make great use of visual equivalents for Shakespeare’s dialogue, and offer a different means of bring the play’s physical world(s) to vivid life.

In general, stage productions use the highest percentage of Shakespeare’s text, while television versions use less, and films even less than television (sometimes using only about 30% of Shakespeare’s dialogue), substituting visual elements for language wherever possible. It is therefore important to consider the kind of recording you are watching: stage, television, or film, and to understand the tools and conventions of each medium. We will explore these differences as we go along.

This is an upper-level, 3-credit L course that is condensed into 7.5 weeks. It is intense, and it is your job to pay attention to the schedule and meet the deadlines. You are expected to read the lectures and each of the plays in their entirety BEFORE watching the different viewings. It is important for you to analyze the play texts on your own so that you can see the interpretive decisions of the directors. You should expect to spend a significant amount of time on this class during each of the weeks (if a 15 week three-credit course requires approximately 9 hours of work each week (3 in class and 6 outside of class), you can expect to roughly double that in the condensed time frame).

Required Readings

Shakespeare’s texts are readily available in the library and online. If you choose to read online, I recommend the Folger Digital Texts. They are easy to read, offer helpful synopses and textual introductions, and are searchable. They do not, however, contain the footnotes and annotations that can help make Shakespeare a bit easier to understand. You may want to purchase or check out of the library print copies of the plays with these annotations. The Folger and The Arden print versions are recommended, but many other editions are also sufficient. Because you are not required to purchase the texts, you may have to rent the film versions that are assigned. Some will be available to stream through the library, and others must be rented for a small fee through streaming services such as Netflix or Amazon Prime. You are also expected to read the lectures and any engage with all additional materials that may be assigned over the course of the session.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Students will gain familiarity with the plays of Shakespeare, reading five of his canonical texts.
2. Students will think critically about the texts of Shakespeare, and consider the meanings made through different stage and film productions.
3. Students will consider the dramaturgical decisions made in bringing a Shakespearean play to life, either on stage, television, or film.
4. Students will enhance their critical inquiry skills through written communication, crafting thoughtful essays that analyze the works of Shakespeare and offer corroborating evidence in support of an argument.

Assignments

You will have assignments due every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of this course (with exceptions for University recognized holidays). Quizzes are due Mondays, Yellowdig Posts are due Wednesdays, and Essays are due Fridays. The Final Exam is due by the final Friday of exams week.

Critical Essays: At the conclusion of each Act of the course, you will be asked to select an essay question to answer. You will be asked to write a 2-3 page essay (more is allowed) that offers a substantive response to the question, with a gripping introduction, a clear thesis statement, a line of argumentation, corroborating evidence, and a thoughtful conclusion. You must cite from the texts, the viewings, and any outside scholarly sources (Wikipedia is NOT okay) you reference. Please refer to the writing rubric for more specific guidelines. In the event of a problem with the file upload, please save a copy of the assignment and the confirmation code you receive with the upload. These essays will be due on Friday nights by 11:59 p.m., no exceptions. Essays are worth 100 points each.

Yellowdig Posts: Yellowdig assignments are all about student engagement and learning from each other. This is primarily a low-key, fun spot for you to get to know each other, though at times we will engage in more serious discussion here as well. I will read all of your posts and respond to general issues that arise, but grading is based on your interactions with your peers. These assignments are designed to allow for more creative responses to the material. As opposed to the critical writing that occurs in the essays, here you can be more casual. I will post the prompt to the announcements on Thursday mornings and also pin the week’s prompt at the top of our Yellowdig board. You will need to complete your own post and your peer responses between Thursdays at 12:00 a.m. and the following Wednesday at 11:59 p.m. Your Yellowdig posts often include a visual component and a brief written discussion of 300 words (more is allowed), and you should write three peer responses (these can be to three different people, or multiple conversational responses on your own or peers’ posts). These responses should be 50 words long (more is allowed). Yellowdig posts are worth 45 points, and each of your three responses is worth 5 points, for 60 points total, with a total of 300 points over the 5 weeks of class. At the end of the session, Yellowdig points transfer over to the course grade.

Quizzes: With each Act, you will take a review quiz. These T/F questions are based on the classroom lectures. They will help you solidify your understanding of the material, and will also serve as excellent study guides for the final exam. Quizzes will be due on Monday nights by 11:59 p.m., no exceptions. Quiz questions are worth 2 points x 10 questions, for 20 points total. There is an extra credit question added into each quiz, so it is possible to earn 22/20 on these.

Final Exam: At the end of the session, you will take a comprehensive final exam. The final exam consists of 50 multiple choice questions based on the readings, films, and additional assigned material. Once you open the exam, it will be timed to automatically shut down after two hours. Exam questions are worth 2 points x 50 questions, for 100 points total.

Extra Credit: An extra credit discussion post will be available during the final week of class. This happens on the Discussions tab of the course shell, not Yellowdig! However, like the Yellowdig posts, students can earn up to 45 points for their post and 5 points for three peer responses for a total of 60 points.

All assignments have strict due dates and late work for written assignments is not accepted without prior permission. If you are not going to be able to successfully complete the assignment by the due date, reach out to me ASAP to make arrangements. I am usually able to grant extensions, but only if you ask in advance! It is your responsibility to ensure that your work is well-crafted, carefully proofread, and submitted on time. At the end of the session, you will be granted the opportunity to make up ONE essay for reduced points, or to revise a previously submitted essay for a higher grade.
Grading Policy

It is my policy to have everything graded within 1-2 weeks from the due date. Because this is an accelerated online course, I will stick as close to 1 week as possible. Once I have given you feedback, I expect you to incorporate my suggestions into your writing (I understand that, due to the grading period, you may not be able to address my feedback until the third essay and critical discussion post).

I am a tough grader, and I am so because I want you to become better thinkers and better writers (this is an L class, after all). Critical thinking is perhaps the most valuable skill you can hone in college, so I will expect you to offer analyses (not plot summaries) backed with evidence in all of your writing, including the critical discussions. To earn an A on any assignment, your work should be excellent. Please be sure to review the writing rubric, which applies to both essays and discussions.

I am tough, but I want to see you all succeed. I do not like failing people. Generally, if you do your work to the best of your ability, you will pass the class. I have also built extra credit opportunities into the class. I get that we are all human beings here, and sometimes things happen. If you have concerns about this, my door – at least the virtual one – is always open. I am a resource to you and will do all that I can to help you achieve in this class.

Course Schedule

Act I: 10/16 – 10/27

- Read lecture material, introductory guide, and Titus Andronicus.
- Watch Titus, directed by Julie Taymor. This will be available to stream through our course reserves.
- Content Transparency: This play is a tragedy, which means a lot of people die. Sections of this play are inspired by ancient myths and plays. The play and film contain scenes of violence, death, rape, and mutilation, and discussions of race and gender.
- Complete Act I Quiz by Monday, October 23 at 11:59 p.m.
• Complete YellowDig post Make a Meme!; post opens Thursday, October 19 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, October 25 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time and can earn up to 60 points this week.

• Complete essay of Titus Andronicus by Friday, October 27 at 11:59 p.m.

Act II: 10/23 – 11/3

• Read lecture material, introductory guide, and Much Ado About Nothing.

• Watch clips from four different versions of the play: the Public Theater’s Summer 2019 theatre production for Shakespeare in the Park, directed by Kenny Leon; the 2013 film version directed by Joss Whedon; the 2011 theatre production for a West End production, directed by Josie Rourke (live recording directed by Robert Delamere); and the 1993 film version directed by Kenneth Branagh. (Clips of the Kenny Leon version are here; please be sure to watch all six of these. Clips of the other versions are largely accessible on YouTube). After watching several clips from all four versions, select one (or more, if you are interested) to view in its entirety. I will provide a link to the Kenny Leon version, which is also available through PBS with a passport ID. The Josie Rourke version is available at Digital Theatre+ through the ASU Library. The film versions are available to rent through Amazon Prime and (weirdly) On Demand through Pluto TV. Recommended: listen to the Shakespeare Unlimited podcast with director Kenny Leon.

• Content Transparency: Though the play is a comedy, it contains accusations of infidelity and discussions of gender.

• Complete Act II Quiz by Monday, October 30 at 11:59 p.m.

• Complete Yellowdig post Which Ado Did You Choose? post opens Thursday, October 26 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, November 1 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time. You can earn up to 60 points this week.

• Complete essay on Much Ado About Nothing by Friday, November 3 at 11:59 p.m.

Act III: 10/30 – 11/11

• Read lecture material, introductory guide, and Twelfth Night.

• Listen to assigned podcasts about Shakespeare: African Americans and Shakespeare and Redressing the Balance: Gender in Shakespeare

• Watch the Royal National Theatre’s Twelfth Night, available through the course reserves. Please also watch the National Theatre’s nine-segment series on Twelfth Night on YouTube. Watch the following segments of Twelfth Night at the Globe, available through the course reserves: Opening 1.3 (segments 1-4), 1.5 (segment 6), 2.5 (segment 11), 3.4 (segment 16), 5.1 (segment20). And, just because I love the depth of sadness that Dame Judy Dench is able to evoke while sitting on a conference stage in regular clothes, watch this clip.

• Content Transparency: Though this play is a comedy, it engages with death, grief, mourning, and (playful) persecution; the productions play with gender and sexuality.

• Complete Act III Quiz by Monday, November 6 at 11:59 p.m.

• Complete Yellowdig post Shakespeare for the 21st Century; post opens Thursday, November 2 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, November 8 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time and can earn up to 60 points this week.

• Complete essay on Twelfth Night by Saturday, November 11 at 11:59 p.m. (due date delayed for Veteran’s Day Observed).

Act IV: 11/6 – 11/17

• Read lecture material, introductory guide, and Macbeth
• Listen to the first scene of Migdalia Cruz’s Play On! Shakespeare translation of Macbeth at the Play On Podcast. You may wish to read along with the original text so that you can see the changes made in Cruz’s translation.
• Watch Ian McKellen on analyzing Shakespeare’s text; watch YouTube clip with five different adaptations; watch all of Throne of Blood, which is available to stream through the ASU library on Kanopy (you will need to set up an account at Kanopy) or can be rented through Amazon Prime. Please note that several of the versions featured in the clips are also available to rent through Amazon Prime if you are interested in watching more, though your essay for the week will focus on Throne of Blood. Recommended: YouTube video of different versions of Macbeth’s soliloquy, documentary on filmmaker Akira Kurasawa (this is available through the ASU library in the Films on Demand infobase).
• Content Transparency: This is a tragedy, which means a lot of people die. The play and film feature violence, murder, war, and presentations of the supernatural, and discussions of gender.
• Complete Act IV Quiz by Monday, November 13 at 11:59 p.m.
• Complete Yellowdig post Who Would You Cast?; post opens Thursday, November 9 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, November 15 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time. You can earn up to 60 points this week.
• Complete essay on Throne of Blood by Friday, November 17 at 11:59 p.m.

Act V: 11/13 – 11/27
• Read lecture material, introductory guide, and Richard III.
• Read “Richard III: Laurence Olivier’s melodramatic baddie is seriously limp” from The Guardian; watch clips from Laurence Olivier’s Richard III (opening soliloquy and Order Now!); watch Richard III directed by Richard Loncraine, available to stream through our course reserves. Recommended: watch Looking for Richard. This is available to rent through Amazon Prime and other streaming services.
• Content Transparency: This is a tragedy, which means a lot of people die. The play and film feature violence, murder, civil war, and discussions of gender and disability.
• Complete Act V Quiz by Monday, November 20 at 11:59 p.m.
• Complete Yellowdig post Putting it All Together; post opens Thursday, November 16 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, November 22 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time and can earn up to 60 points this week.
• Complete essay on Richard III by Monday, November 27 at 11:59 p.m. (due date delayed for Thanksgiving Weekend).

Final Exam Week: 11/27 – 12/8
• Complete Final Exam: The final will open on Monday, November 27 at 12:00 a.m. and will close Friday, December 8 at 11:59 p.m. Herberger Online uses strict anti-cheating protocols. Make sure that you take the exam in one sitting, with only one internet browser open, and only one tab open, using only one device. If you navigate away from the exam page for any reason, the test will lock, and you will need to contact Herberger Online for an exam reset (see note below in Technical Requirements). The instructor cannot issue exam resets. Do not wait until the last day to take the exam.
• Complete extra credit discussion post (on the course shell, not on Yellowdig) My Favorite Shakespeare Passage; post opens Monday, November 27 at 12:00 a.m. and closes Wednesday, December 6 at 11:59 p.m. You must complete your post and your peer responses during that time.
• You have the opportunity to make up ONE essay for reduced points, or to revise a previously submitted essay for a higher grade; essay should be emailed to the instructor by Friday, December 8 by 11:59 p.m.

Guidelines for Written Work

• Double space, 12-point Times New Roman font, 1” margins.
• Follow the MLA Style guide, especially for your in-text citations and your Works Cited page. A free version is available at the Purdue Owl website. You must list sources in a works cited page, and the works cited page does not count toward your page requirements.
• Title your essays (and title them something other than the title of the play – Shakespeare already wrote those). Try to come up with something succinct and evocative that reflects your argument.
• You can cite Shakespeare’s texts by act, scene, and line number, marking where the verse lines end with a forward slash: “If music be the food of love, play on; / Give me excess of it, that surfeiting, / The appetite may sicken and so die.” (Twelfth Night, 1.1.1-3).
• When citing dialogue between two or more characters, block quote and make sure it is legible and appears as it does on the printed page:

  BENEDICK: Lady Beatrice, have you wept all this while?
  BEATRICE: Yea, and I will weep a while longer.
  BENEDICK: I will not desire that.
  BEATRICE: You have no reason. I do it freely. (4.1.255-8)
• Save your assignment in .doc, .docx, or .pdf format.
• Edit and carefully proofread your document before you submit it.

How to Excel in this Course

This course moves very quickly, and requires that you complete the work of one Act while beginning the work of another! Do not let yourself fall behind! This is an upper division course, which means that you will be responsible for critically engaging with the material. This is not a class where you passively wait for me to tell you what Shakespeare means; you are to be an active learner, interrogating how meaning is made in stage and film productions. Moreover, it is up to you to meet the deadlines – these are all set here, in the syllabus, and I will not send out reminders. Be sure to check the course announcements and your ASU email frequently.

To do well in this course, here is a sample plan of work to follow each week:

Monday: Course materials open on Mondays. Click on the appropriate Act and read the lecture materials. You must read all of the lecture (many have multiple Scenes). Take notes on the reading, keeping track of key concepts and ideas that stand out.

Tuesday: Read the assigned play and the introductory guide. Take notes on the reading, paying attention to recurring themes, images, and metaphors. Also note passages that you find particularly meaningful. Consider what you think the overall meaning of the play to be, and think about how you would stage or film it.
Wednesday-Saturday: Yellowdig posts and discussion posts are due on Wednesdays. That means you should start them BEFORE they are due, so that you can respond to your peers. Be sure to look at the discussion forum and draft your answer. I recommend proofreading and posting by Friday. Watch the assigned film/clips/recordings, again taking notes. Think about the different dramaturgical, design, and aesthetic choices made, and how that impacts the meaning the audience takes from the production. Set a writing schedule that will allow you to draft your essay, take some time away from it, edit, carefully proofread, and submit the essay by the due date.

Friday-Monday: Review your peers’ Yellowdig and discussion posts and respond. Continue developing and editing essays to hand in by the due date.

Technical Requirements & Support

Please do not contact your instructor for technical support.

- You will need a standard laptop or desktop computer to access your classes. A mobile device, tablet, or netbook will likely not provide the access and functionality necessary for ASU Online courses.
- High-speed internet is needed, as most ASU Online courses use multimedia tools.
- You should have at least two browsers on your computer. Any browser will work, though preferred browsers are Chrome and Firefox, which can be downloaded for free online.
- ASU students have access to Google Drive (My Drive via MyASU), where you can create and share Google documents, presentations, spreadsheets and more. You will also have access to additional software provided at no cost through My Apps at MyASU.
- Be sure to take time to explore MyASU. This will be critical to your success as a student.

All questions regarding logging into the Herberger Online site or technical difficulties when accessing or submitting assignments or exams should be directed to holsupport@asu.edu. You can also go to http://herbergeronline.asu.edu/help. Herberger support is only available Monday – Friday, 8:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Exam Resets: If you have technical difficulties during the exam do not submit the exam. Instead, close your internet browser without submitting the exam and re-open the Herberger Online website and log back into the exam. The system will then allow you to reset the exam and you will be given a completely new exam to complete. Only one student reset per exam is allowed.

Other Policies

Students must abide by all the requirements stated in this syllabus. In addition, all students should be aware of their rights and responsibilities at Arizona State University. Please reference the college catalog and student handbook for student rights and responsibilities. Students are expected to adhere to the ASU Student Code of Conduct.

Academic Integrity

Plagiarism and use of AI without significant editing and input is UNACCEPTABLE! Plagiarism is defined as deliberately passing off someone else’s words or ideas as your own. All necessary and appropriate sanctions will be issued to all parties involved with plagiarizing any and all coursework. Plagiarism and any other form of academic dishonesty that is in violation of the Student Code of Conduct will not be tolerated.

Students are responsible for knowing the rules governing the use of another’s work or materials and for acknowledging and documenting the source appropriately. To avoid charges of plagiarism, remember to cite all sources, including the content within the course website. Be warned that your work will be checked by anti-plagiarism software. All necessary and appropriate sanctions will be issued to all parties involved with plagiarizing any and all course work. Plagiarism and any other form of academic dishonesty that is in violation of the Student Code of Conduct will not be tolerated. Students caught plagiarizing may fail the course and receive a permanent mark of XE on their transcript. For more information, please see the ASU Student Academic Integrity Policy.

Besides academic performance, students should exhibit the qualities of honesty and integrity. Every student is expected to produce his/her original, independent work. Any student whose work indicates a violation of the ASU Academic Misconduct Policy including cheating, plagiarism, and dishonesty will be subject to disciplinary action.

Arizona State University and the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts expect the highest standards of academic integrity from all students. Failure to meet these standards may result in suspension or expulsion from the university or other sanctions as specified in the University Student Academic Integrity Policy. For more information, please see the ASU Student Academic Integrity Policy: http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity.

Per ASU policy, a student may not avoid the consequences of academic dishonesty by withdrawing from a course and may be placed back in the course in order to face sanctions resulting from academic integrity violations. You are responsible for abiding by this policy.

In addition, ASU adheres to a university-wide Student Code of Conduct. The philosophy behind this policy states: The aim of education is the intellectual, personal, social, and ethical development of the individual. The educational process is ideally conducted in an environment that encourages reasoned discourse, intellectual honesty, openness to constructive change and respect for the rights of all individuals. Self-discipline and a respect for the rights of others in the university community are necessary for the fulfillment of such goals. The Student Code of Conduct is designed to promote this environment at each of the state universities.

The ASU student academic integrity policy lists violations in detail. These violations fall into five broad areas that include but are not limited to:

1. Cheating on an academic evaluation or assignment.
2. Plagiarizing.
3. Academic deceit, such as fabricating data or information.
4. Aiding academic integrity policy violations and inappropriately collaborating.
5. Falsifying academic records.

Student Conduct
You are expected to treat your instructor and your fellow classmates with respect and kindness. In all correspondence and in Discussion Board postings, you should show respect for the viewpoints of others who may disagree with you or see things from a different perspective. Criticizing, ridiculing, insulting, or belittling others will not be accepted. Keep in mind that electronic communications do not have the advantage of nonverbal cues that are so much a part of interpersonal communication. Humor or satire can sometimes be misinterpreted in strictly electronic communication forums.

Online Activity Logs
All course activity is logged by the Herberger Online servers, and those logs are regularly reviewed by Herberger Online during the course of normal business. These logs contain all requests you make while visiting the site: every image, video, web page, etc. Each request is logged with the time, down to the second, when it was made. If you contact your instructor, or Herberger Online, about a technical issue, these logs will be reviewed as part of that process.

Disruptive, Threatening or Violent Behavior
Threatening, violent, or disruptive behavior will not be tolerated in this class and will be handled in accordance with ASU policy.

Title IX
Title IX is a federal law that provides that no person be excluded on the basis of sex from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity. Both Title IX and university policy make clear that sexual violence and harassment based on sex is prohibited. An individual who believes they have been subjected to sexual violence or harassed on the basis of sex can seek support, including counseling and academic support, from the university. If you or someone you know has been harassed on the basis of sex or sexually assaulted, you can find information and resources here.

As a mandated reporter, I am obligated to report any information I become aware of regarding alleged acts of sexual discrimination, including sexual violence and dating violence. ASU Counseling Services is available if you wish to discuss any concerns confidentially and privately.

Netiquette (Online Etiquette)
Netiquette, a social code that defines “good” online behavior is something to keep in mind during your online course interactions. Writing may be the only means of communication you have with classmates and instructors, so it is especially important to do this effectively. Follow the guidelines below to leave your mark as a knowledgeable, respectful and polite student who is also positioned to succeed professionally. Tips for appropriate netiquette can be found here.

Student Services & Resources
Student resources, including advisement, registration, financial aid, disability services, counseling, tutoring, library, and more, can be found here.

Special Accommodations
Students with disabilities must have an equally effective and equivalent educational opportunity as those students without disabilities. Students experiencing difficulty accessing course materials because of a disability are expected to contact the course instructor so that a solution can be found that provides all students equal access to course materials and technology.

Your instructor is willing to make any reasonable adaptations for limitations due to any documented disability, including learning disabilities. You must contact Student Accessibility and Inclusive Learning Services to process the paperwork for special course accommodations. This is a very important step as accommodations may be difficult to make retroactively. Please present SAILS documentation to me no later than the end of the first week of the semester so that your needs can be addressed effectively.

The Writing Center
Students have access to Academic Support Programs including tutoring and the writing center.

Counseling & Consultation
